

Scattered on an urgent wind
A host of seeds
Falls randomly
Outside the cherished rows.
Some find sweet sanctuary
In the earth
And with Demeter's breath become
Striving progeny
So tiny
A thousand
Cling to the heavy hoe
That gouges them from the soil.