

Spectator Slowdown

The telephone pole rests lazily across the hood as the man steps from the metal heap the eighty-proof bottles forgotten on the back seat.

Shards of tinted glass lie inert reflecting the vultures standing, feasting on the sight while the form of a little boy liquidizes and flows into the gutter.