

UNTIL

HELEN LAURENCE

while morning smiles
our nuzzling widens
blending us until
our flower yellow creams
when mist
grey fingers long
the clinging ferns

crow bounces pine branch boggles
unleaved paper mulberry dripping sweet to
our touching lips
our day along

until all the blue-spindled white-gray brightness
hangs
until